

Honorable Commisioners... As an Indiana resident I am distressed that a number of Indiana banks have threatened our privacy by asking you to strip Indiana's law of important provisions that restrict telemarketing calls to our home and as a result the country's strongest Do Not Call law could be overridden, resulting in hundreds of unsolicited sales calls to the citizens of our state. Please respect our privacy by saying "NO" to these telemarketers attempts to invade our homes, our lives and our right to privacy. While the federal law offers basic protection, it should be left to the states to form stronger laws specifically in protecting the rights of privacy for their residents. Thank You for your consideration in this matter.
